Job Description

POSITION: Nine-month non-tenure-track position and not eligible for tenure, a full-time lecturer in Hospitality Management, with the Department of Nutrition, Dietetics and Hospitality Management, College of Human Sciences, beginning May 2022, or earlier. Contract renewed annually based upon need, funding, and performance

RESPONSIBILITIES: The lecturer will be responsible for all food and beverage service laboratory teaching in the 1856 Restaurant in the new Tony and Libba Rane Culinary Science Center. Courses will include Food Production and Service in Hospitality, Food and Beverage Management, Special Events, and Global Gastronomy. The lecturer will also assist the program with undergraduate academic advising. The successful applicant would participate in the formation of department policies related to the undergraduate curriculum but would not participate in decisions regarding promotion and tenure, graduate faculty membership, or policies unrelated to the curriculum, except as they directly affect the lecturer's role. The lecturer will be dedicated entirely to teaching and not be required to develop, pursue, or maintain an independent research agenda. This assignment will allow a high-level dedication to effective teaching. The lecturer will be reviewed annually by the Department Head. Based on the College and Department guidelines, the lecturer will be eligible for promotion to Senior Lecturer.

SETTING: The Department of Nutrition, Dietetics, and Hospitality Management employs 16 full-time tenure-track faculty affiliated with the College of Human Sciences. The department offers a baccalaureate degree program in Hospitality Management, with program options in Hotel and Restaurant Management, Event Management, and Culinary Science. The department also offers an MS and Ph.D. in Hospitality Management and an MS degree in Brewing Science and Operations. The Hospitality Management Program will be housed in the newly constructed Tony and Libba Rane Culinary Science Center. Shaping the next generation of top-tier hospitality professionals while providing exceptional guest experiences in a state-of-the-art learning facility, the Hospitality Management Program at Auburn University will prepare graduates for an array of careers within the broad hospitality industry with immersive, hands-on learning opportunities available through the Tony and Libba Range Culinary Science Center.

The College of Human Sciences is one of twelve (12) academic schools and colleges on the Auburn University campus. It enrolls more than 1,600 undergraduate students and approximately 150 graduate students across three departments (Consumer and Design Sciences, Human Development and Family Studies, and Nutrition, Dietetics, and Hospitality Management).
