The School of Business Administration is AACSB accredited. For more information about the technology programs at the business school please visit our website at <http://harrisburg.psu.edu/business-administration>. This position is a term position and has a strong likelihood of renewal.

Responsibilities: The primary responsibilities of the Lecturer or Assistant Teaching Professor of Cybersecurity include:

Teaching: Specific job responsibilities include teaching undergraduate courses in cybersecurity, security, and risk analysis. These courses are taught in-person and synchronously. Primary teaching areas include the following: digital networking and network security, cybersecurity and cyber forensics, security and malware analytics, and risk management. Secondary teaching areas could include the following: static and dynamic malware analysis, cyber defensive techniques, cybersecurity-related machine learning, programming skills (Java & Python), and database technology.

Research/Scholarship: Faculty are expected to maintain a high level of professional activity through scholarship and service.

Service: All faculty are expected to undertake committee work, advising, community engagement, and mentorship, and make other contributions to the campus, to DEIB goals and initiatives, and to the broader academic community.

Qualifications: Preferred candidates will hold a doctorate in cybersecurity, Information Technology, or a related field with specialization in cybersecurity and network security. Candidates with a master's degree in cybersecurity, Information Technology or a related field and possess security-related certifications (CISSP, CISM, CEH, OSCP, CCNA, etc.) are strongly encouraged to apply. In order to start at the rank of Assistant Teaching Professor (as opposed to Lecturer), the successful candidate must receive their doctorate degree prior to appointment.

DEIB Requirement: Candidates should demonstrate a commitment to transforming teaching methods, communication approaches, course materials, learning objectives, and learning environments to genuinely support, respect, and cater to the diverse needs of student populations at Penn State Harrisburg.

Application Process: Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Applicants should expect to upload a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a statement of teaching philosophy, and contact information for three references to hr.psu.edu/careers.
