The Department of Finance and Innovation at the Anderson School of Management is seeking to fill the position of Lecturer II in Project Management to begin August 2026, depending on funding approval.

The Anderson School of Management is accredited by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB) International and is one of the few programs in the world to attain both an Accounting and Business Accreditation from AACSB. We provide a Bachelor of Business Administration (BBA) program with 8 dynamic concentrations, alongside specialized Master's degrees in Accounting, Project Management, and Cybersecurity & Analytics. For those seeking advanced business leadership, we offer a versatile MBA program with 11 distinct tracks, as well as an Executive MBA tailored for working professionals ready to elevate their careers.

With over 21,000 alumni, Anderson alums can be found having an impact in their communities all over the world. Anderson emphasizes collaborative student interaction, active adult learning, team experiences and scholarship that draw upon a variety of methodologies and subject areas.

New Mexico represents a wide range of perspectives with a rich cultural heritage. The richness of our community is demonstrated both internally (<http://www.unm.edu/welcome/>) and within the city (<https://advance.unm.edu/why-abq/>) and state (<https://www.newmexico.org/>). The University of New Mexico seeks highly qualified faculty who can contribute to the University's mission and values and continue to build the excellent research and teaching climate of Anderson School of Management. The Finance and Innovation faculty supports existing BBA and MBA programs including concentrations in Project Management. Teaching responsibilities for this position include undergraduate and graduate courses in Project Management.

Applicant Instructions:

Each applicant will be instructed to provide:

- A cover letter of application, including a statement of qualifications in relation to the Minimum and Preferred Qualifications. If the applicant is currently pursuing a PhD, and the PhD is not yet completed, they should include an anticipated timeline for completion of the degree.
- A complete and up-to-date curriculum vita,
- Teaching/mentoring statement,
- Letters of Recommendation, if available,
